Baron Von Nolken, Injured by Bomb Explosion, Though Painfully Injured Is Expected to Recover-Extensive Plot Exposed

Warsaw, Russian Poland, March 27 .-Baron von Nolken, chief of police of Warsaw, who was injured by the explosion of a bomb yesterday, owes his life to the bad aim of his assailant, who threw the bomb behind instead of underneath the carriage. The body of Van Nolken is full of innumerable splinters of the bomb. His assailant has not yet been arrested.

The man who previously threw a bomb into the police station at Prague, a suburb of Warsaw, injuring six policemen, is believed to be dying. He was injured by a fragment of the bomb, as well as by bullets fired at him by the police.

He refuses to reveal his identity, but declares himself to be a Socialist. The greatest excitement prevails throughout this city.

If advertising doesn't sell goods, it is something else-it certainly isn't advertising.

To advertise doesn't mean to spend a certain amount of money in space or printed matter, excepting that it will prove profitable as a natural result.

If you have advertised, and it has not paid you, it simply proves that you have not advertised in the right way.

The proof of this statement lies in the fact that you can see tremendous advertising successes on every hand. There is a right way to advertise your product, a way that will sell it as fast as you can make it. A way that will make the name of your goods a household word from one end of the country to the other.

A multitude of experiences has proved that the right way is to go direct to the consumer, plead your case with him and win his confidence and patronage-800,000 families or 4,000,000 consumers may be reached every week through the columns of their favorite magazine, THE SATURDAY EVENING POST. Thomas Van Dyke Carries Fainting Woman Down Crumbling Stairways From Burning Hotel -Stephens House Damaged $2,500.

At the risk of his life Chief Thom Van Dyke of the East St. Louis Fire Department braved a burning staircase is the Stephens House, at Summit and Colrescued Mrs. Frank Keating from her room on the third floor, carrying her down two flights of stairs.

On the way down her foot caught be tween a handraff and the wall and her ankle was slightly sprained. Chief Van Dyke then returned for Mr. Keating, whom he found half suffocated and wandering about on the third floor trying to save some valuable papers. Several other narrow escapes made the fire one of the most exciting in East St. Louis. The damage amounts to about $2,500.

The Stephens House is a three-story brick hotel, and is owned by former Mayor M. M. Stephens, who conducted it until three years ago. The rear portion is two steries in height and is frame. There are no fire escapes on the building, and the stories in height and is frame. There are no fire escapes on the building, and the only staircase is on the inside, which made it difficult for the occupants of the hotel to escape and for the firemen to reach them.

The fire was discovered by Fred Squires, who occupied a room in the frame addition and who lost all of his belongings. He was half suffocated when he awoke. Realizing the serious nature of the fire, he hastened to the second and third floors of the hotel and roused the occupants. He then turned in an alarm of fire. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Furey, who occupy rooms on the second floor, were the last on that floor to be awakened. The fire was eating into the staircase then, and Mr. Furey seized his wife and some of their clothes and carried her downstairs.

After the arrival of the Fire Department it was discovered that Frank Keating and his wife, who occupy rooms on the third floor, were missing. The information was given to Chief Van Dyke who ran into the house and up the burning staircase.

As he broke into Keating's room he discovered that Mrs. Keating was almost suffocated. Calling to Keating to follow him, Chief Van Dyke lifted Mrs. Keating on his shoulder and ran downstairs with her. When he reached the ground he learned that Keating had not followed, and at Mrs. Keating's entreaties he again dashed up the burning staircase. He found Keating half suffocated wandering about on the third floor trying to secure some papers, which he declared were very valuable to him. Chief Van Dyke seized him and took him downstairs.

Meanwhile the firemen were having a difficult time to get at the fire. It had started in the basement and had made such a headway that the entire building seemed doomed for a few minutes. Effective work stopped the flames and kept the cellar was topped the flames and kept the cellar was pumped out. The hotel is first floor. After the fire was extinguished Chief Van Dyke kept the engine at the place until the water which had flooded the cellar was pumped out. The hotel is managed by J. B. Long, who was in Balem, Ill., at the time of the fire, negotiating to trade his lease and the furniture in the place for a farm there.

The reconstruction of old lines also keeps on with constantly gathering force, whether it be in the changes required by the separation of grades in cities or for the more utilitarian purpose of relucing the cost of operating expenses over a whole or part of a line.

Several remarkable examples of this work are to be found described in the columns of The Railway Age during the year 1894, and in the last issue is exhibited one of the most interesting performances yet attempted—the elevation of the Chicago and Western Indiana on the south and west sides of the city of Chicago.

Jesuit Professor Asserts Chris tianity and Collectivism Cannot Survive in Same Community-Differences Are Defined.

"Scientific Socialism and Christianity cannot survive in the same community Socialism is founded on atheism and ma itualism."

In his lecture on "Socialism and the Church," last night, before the Young Men's Sociality of St. Francis Xavier' Church, the Reverend Father Bernard McMenamy, professor in St. Louis Uni versity, thus defined the essential differ ences between the Church and Socialism. The latter he defined as a "system of political economy which advocates the transformation of all capital or means of production into the common property of society, or the state, and of the administration of the products and the distribu tion of the proceeds by the state."

"Two thousand years ago the greatest philosopher the world has ever known taught a socialistic doctrine which startied the leaders of thought in Jerusalem in Rome and in Athens. This socialism is still taught and practiced by the church which he founded. The religious orders, the Jesuits, Dominicans and Franciscans put in practice a community of goods. This form of socialism is, and always has been, carefully fostered and encouraged by the Church. of law, order and religion, making what s true and legitimate to-day untrue and illegitimate to-morrow. class distinctions in society, otherwise neither the church, the state nor the family could exist; clearly proves that a struggle between the classes is not necessary and would be avoided if all classes would but observe the natural and revealed law; denies a 'peaceful' revolution could ever establish the equality, which Socialists demand. The Socialists declare that it is unjust and even 'immoral' for any individual to hold private property.

"Christianity teaches and always has taught that holding of private property, especially producing property, is a natural right to man as an individual, and an absolute necessity to man as head of a family. Socialism naturally leads to the disruption of the family, absorbs the rights of parents, makes children wards of the state, favors divorce; and will certainly piunge the human race into an abyss of immorality and free-love.

"Christianity, the Catholic Church, has fought for 200 years for the integrity of the family, for its rights, and abhors divorce and any legislation that would lead to immorality. In fact, the church rejects and abhors scientific socialism in its beginning, its middle, and its end.

"The solution of the struggle of the classes is a religious matter, and only the church can handle the situation."
